A battered opponent who will never surrender. Never. When the small boy is knocked down, he gets up. But never. Blood.

Aslan is not a tame lion. Just say yes to sex. And even when you don't want it. If you wanted it, He'd give it. He promised that: "All who ask in the name of the Son of God, He'll give."

And nothing in the world is worth the road down. For God wants us to be holy. To be pure. For He cannot make us holy. He has already done it. He's already made us holy. And nothing in the world is worth the road down.

Last year, an American Catholic bishop said: "Yes. The Lord loves the three who are not faithful."

Or rather, not dying to your desires but dying to your pigginess. In a miraculous reversal of Christ's first miracle at Cana, turning the wine of the world into the blood of the heavens, He said: "This is my blood, the blood of the New Testament."

And if God still loves His church in the world, and it is His church, then why doesn't God make me a saint? If only grace can do it, why doesn't God cause it then? If sanctity isn't a do-it-yourself thing but means to the end of something, then why doesn't God make me a saint? But the answer is: He already did.

And nothing in the world is worth the road down. For God wants us to be holy. To be pure. For He cannot make us holy. He has already done it. He's already made us holy. And nothing in the world is worth the road down.

This is true also of gay and lesbian men and women. For if they're not saints, then they're not saints. If they're not saints, then they're not saints. If they're not saints, then they're not saints.

And that gives us our third necessary condition for winning the culture war. Because you don't want it. If you wanted it, He'd give it. He promised that: "All who ask in the name of the Son of God, He'll give."

So who are our enemies? Many of us think our enemies are those outside your soul. But that's not true. And if you think your enemies are those outside your soul, then why don't they make you a saint? If only grace can do it, why don't they cause it then? If sanctity isn't a do-it-yourself thing but means to the end of something, then why don't they cause it then? If God still loves His church in the world, and it is His church, then why don't they make me a saint? But the answer is: They already did.

And nothing in the world is worth the road down. For God wants us to be holy. To be pure. For He cannot make us holy. He has already done it. He's already made us holy. And nothing in the world is worth the road down.

This is true also of gay and lesbian men and women. For if they're not saints, then they're not saints. If they're not saints, then they're not saints. If they're not saints, then they're not saints.

And that gives us our third necessary condition for winning the culture war. Because you don't want it. If you wanted it, He'd give it. He promised that: "All who ask in the name of the Son of God, He'll give."

So who are our enemies? Many of us think our enemies are those outside your soul. But that's not true. And if you think your enemies are those outside your soul, then why don't they make you a saint? If only grace can do it, why don't they cause it then? If sanctity isn't a do-it-yourself thing but means to the end of something, then why don't they cause it then? If God still loves His church in the world, and it is His church, then why don't they make me a saint? But the answer is: They already did.

And nothing in the world is worth the road down. For God wants us to be holy. To be pure. For He cannot make us holy. He has already done it. He's already made us holy. And nothing in the world is worth the road down.

This is true also of gay and lesbian men and women. For if they're not saints, then they're not saints. If they're not saints, then they're not saints. If they're not saints, then they're not saints.

And that gives us our third necessary condition for winning the culture war. Because you don't want it. If you wanted it, He'd give it. He promised that: "All who ask in the name of the Son of God, He'll give."

So who are our enemies? Many of us think our enemies are those outside your soul. But that's not true. And if you think your enemies are those outside your soul, then why don't they make you a saint? If only grace can do it, why don't they cause it then? If sanctity isn't a do-it-yourself thing but means to the end of something, then why don't they cause it then? If God still loves His church in the world, and it is His church, then why don't they make me a saint? But the answer is: They already did.

And nothing in the world is worth the road down. For God wants us to be holy. To be pure. For He cannot make us holy. He has already done it. He's already made us holy. And nothing in the world is worth the road down.

This is true also of gay and lesbian men and women. For if they're not saints, then they're not saints. If they're not saints, then they're not saints. If they're not saints, then they're not saints.

And that gives us our third necessary condition for winning the culture war. Because you don't want it. If you wanted it, He'd give it. He promised that: "All who ask in the name of the Son of God, He'll give."

So who are our enemies? Many of us think our enemies are those outside your soul. But that's not true. And if you think your enemies are those outside your soul, then why don't they make you a saint? If only grace can do it, why don't they cause it then? If sanctity isn't a do-it-yourself thing but means to the end of something, then why don't they cause it then? If God still loves His church in the world, and it is His church, then why don't they make me a saint? But the answer is: They already did.

And nothing in the world is worth the road down. For God wants us to be holy. To be pure. For He cannot make us holy. He has already done it. He's already made us holy. And nothing in the world is worth the road down.